

I am extremely upset that Sinclair Broadcasting is forcing their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary, days before the election. This action is obviously a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Also, Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest! Airing a very biased, one-sided piece of propaganda before our presidential election definitely does not serve public interest.

If Sinclair wants to air "Stolen Honor: Wounds That Never Heal," then at the very least, they should also air "Going Upriver: The Long war of John Kerry," which presents same subject from an opposing perspective.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard.

I plan on opposing Sinclair's licence renewal in any and every way that I can, because of the continued political bias evident in their broadcasting decisions.
